Dr. Lennart Krook is a Professor of Pathology, Emeritus, Emeritus at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. In March of this year, Ithaca considered whether or not to fluoridate its water supply. Dr. Krook, an editor of Fluoride, the journal of the International Society for Fluoride Research weighed in on the subject in a two part editorial for The Ithaca Journal. Since 1959, Dr. Krook has studied the fluoride issue. He has generously agreed to let The Voice reprint his articles because he believes that it is important for people to know the facts about fluoride. Ithaca voted not to fluoridate the water supply.

Dr. Krook also sent a copy of his article from the November 1998 issue of Fluoride. As he states in his letter to me, "it is in very technical writing but read the last paragraph in the summary and in the discus-
