Rampant negativism only hurts Winsted

Editor of The Register Citizen:

Whenever the basic concepts of human decency, dignity and truth are violated, it is imperative to defend the integrity of those affected. Such is the situation regarding Winsted's notorious selectmen, the "Gang of Four."

Beyond any reasonable doubt three influential sources have maliciously altered the scales of credibility by intentionally clouding issues and confronting the public with half truths.

Ruth Wheeler and her narrow minded cronies have yet to realize that ignorance is not a virtue, but a contagious disease. Ms. Wheeler in her letter to the editor (Feb. 1) urges citizens to call Mad River television and ask them to rerun in its entirety the Jan. 28 selectmen's meeting, showing the mayor's unprofessional conduct.

I publicly challenge Mad River television to air my condensed video of the public shortcomings spewed by our political renegades. (The three amigos, their advocate and Ruth Wheeler).

Keeping score in this event of questionable deportment offers no surprise. "Renegades" 16 - "Gang of Four" 2.

"The Three Amigos" continue to intentionally disrupt the political process for both political and personal vengeance. While hiding behind their claims of justice, they continue to stifle any positive growth our town might possess.

Charlene LaVoie could better serve the community if she were to halt her subversive tactics and concentrate on the legitimacy of her political activities. Her contempt for the citizens of this community and for the process of open government continues to cost this town countless dollars.

The Three Amigos, Charlene LaVoie and Ruth Wheeler would be wiser to remember that negative thoughts, negative words and negative actions breed only negative results.
